

Abstract

Joints for movable toys, such as action figures, that use friction to maintain a fixed position. The toys include several body part members interconnected by a joint that includes a plug portion and a socket portion that receives the plug portion. The socket 5 portion includes one or more protrusions, against which the plug portion is urged to create friction between the plug portion and the socket portion.